

Lowell and Hazel Carter

Spotlight: Lowell D. and Hazel Sabey Carter. Lowell was born March 6, 1899 (90 years), and Hazel born Dec. 15, 1908 (80 years). They were married Oct. 3, 1927 (61 years). They are one delightful couple! Lowell, born and raised in Provo, worked as a pipe-fitter for his occupation. Hazel was born in Wallsburg to James (Ed) and Nettie (Davis) Sabey. She attended Wallsburg School.

Lowell and Hazel met at Bingham, UT, where he worked at the mine, and she at the boarding house. After their marriage, they moved to Bingham to be close to work. This was the beginning of years of traveling to different states with Lowell's work. As the year of the Depression took its toll, after living two years in Bingham, in order to get work, they lived in California, Alaska, Arizona, then back to California. Finally, retirement came and they were able to return to Wallsburg; Hazel's wish to spend the last years where her mother was. Nettie lived just three months after the Carter's return home.

Some of Hazel's fond memories include riding horseback three miles a day to Wallsburg School. However, by the time she got to school, the teacher would rub her feet and hands to return the circulation from cold.

Lowell loved bow and arrow target shooting. He was an avid target shooter. He shot both bow and gun until his eyesight failed.

Three children were born to Lowell and Hazel: Dee Carter, Don Carter, and Jeanene (McIlhargey). They have thirteen grandchildren and fifteen great-grandchildren.

Lowell and Hazel Carter

Spotlight: Lowell D. and Hazel Sabey Carter. Lowell was born March 6, 1899 (90 years), and Hazel born Dec. 15, 1908 (80 years). They were married Oct. 3, 1927 (61 years). They are one delightful couple! Lowell, born and raised in Provo, worked as a pipe-fitter for his occupation. Hazel was born in Wallsburg to James (Ed) and Nettie (Davis) Sabey. She attended Wallsburg School.

Lowell and Hazel met at Bingham, UT, where he worked at the mine, and she at the boarding house. After their marriage, they moved to Bingham to be close to work. This was the beginning of years of traveling to different states with Lowell's work. As the year of the Depression took its toll, after living two years in Bingham, in order to get work, they lived in California, Alaska, Arizona, then back to California. Finally, retirement came and they were able to return to Wallsburg; Hazel's wish to spend the last years where her mother was. Nettie lived just three months after the Carter's returned home.

Some of Hazel's fond memories include riding horseback three miles a day to Wallsburg School. However, by the time she got to school, the teacher would rub her feet and hands to return the circulation from the cold.

Lowell loved bow and arrow target shooting. He was an avid gun target shooter. He shot both bow and gun until his eyesight failed.

Three children were born to Lowell and Hazel: Dee Carter, Lee Don Carter, and Jeanene (McIlhargey). They have thirteen grandchildren and fifteen great-grandchildren. 26 OCT 1988

Obituaries

Hazel S. Carter

Hazel Sabey Carter, 86, died March 13, 1995, in Orem.

Born Dec. 15, 1908, in Wallsburg, to James Edgar and Janette Davis Sabey. Married Lowell D. Carter, Oct. 3, 1927, in Heber City. He died Nov. 14, 1992. Member of the LDS Church. Educated in Wallsburg and Heber City schools. Lived in California, Alaska and Page, AZ, later retiring to Wallsburg in 1970. Enjoyed quilting. Devoted wife, mother and grandmother. Loved her grandchildren and was very special in their lives. Found much joy in doing things for others.

Survived by children: Lowell DeLose and Shirley Carter, Concord, CA; Lee Don and Phyllis Carter, Blackfoot, ID. 10 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren. Sisters: Reta Ford and Lila Robey. Special niece and nephew, Allen Sabey and Faye Mecham. Preceded in death by a daughter, Jeanene McIlhargey, one grandson, and one great-granddaughter. Brothers, Elmo, Jack, LaVerl, and a sister, Merle Ford.

Funeral services were held at the Wallsburg City Ward Chapel Friday. Burial was in the Wallsburg Cemetery.